The bulbs from which the lilies grew were gifts from the late Joseph Taconi, a long-time city employee and the last resident of the Kate Lobrano Cottage on Court Street that now is home to the Hancock County Historical Society Museum. Stamm said she plans to use the painting to decorate note cards. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

Ordinance grants Bay employees job security

BY D.C. HARVILL

When an ordinance passed recently by the Bay St. Louis City Council goes into effect, the jobs of city employees will be protected from politically motivated actions.

The ordinance, authorized by the Mississippi Legislature in April, is designed to provide long-term stability in the city's work force. At the same time, it has a stated goal of retaining employees based solely on their merits and of promoting improvement of employee productivity.

"Outstanding performance by employees shall be the expected norm," the ordinance states.

"The city has spent a lot of money improving its work force and it is a shame for them to lose their jobs just because the administration changes with an election," District Four Councilman John Wilkerson said.

All city employees are protected under the ordinance, except department heads, the council clerk and the mayor's secretary or assistant.

New employees will be subjected to a 12-month probationary period, during which they will not be covered by the civil service system.

According to the ordinance, an employee must receive written notification of an intended adverse job action, before it becomes effective, specifying the reason for the action.

The employee then has the right to an administrative hearing before the mayor.

The ordinance also creates a three-member commission to which an employee may appeal in the event a matter cannot be solved at the administrative level.

The commission will be appointed by the mayor, subject to approval by the city council.

If further action is required, either the employee or the city may appeal the decision of the commission in circuit court.

According to the ordinance, justifications for job action are: incompetency; failure to make efforts toward performance improvements; failure to correct performance, attitude or behavior problems indicated through evaluations or employee feedback.

Also, dishonesty, intemperance, insubordination, discourteous treatment of the public or fellow employees; wantonly offensive conduct and acts of violence or abuse, illegal use of controlled substances, conduct that would undermine the public's confidence in the city's work force, whether on or off duty; posing an unusually high liability to the city and any act which tends to hinder the efficiency of the work force and public service.

According to Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr., most civil service systems are created in response to specific situations, but the Bay St. Louis City Council chose to create one before being faced with a problem.

The ordinance has to be advertised for 30 days before going into effect.

The bill authorizing the ordinance was introduced simultaneously in the State Senate and the State House of Representatives by Senator Gene Taylor and Representative J.P. Compretta, both of Bay St. Louis.

Alert residents recover, return sign thief's haul

BY DENA BISNETTE

Through the efforts of a local Neighborhood Watch group, about $150 worth of metal signs has been recovered for Hancock County.

Martin DeSalvo Jr., a spokesman for Bayou Philip Neighborhood Watch, said the signs were found over the weekend when several members of the group were checking a wooded area.

DeSalvo said the wooded areas are periodically checked by watch members for several reasons, including previous findings of stolen property and an illegal trash dumping problem.

Most of the signs looked new and still had poles on them, he said. He speculated that more than one person may have been involved in the removal of the signs because there were several unusually long poles involved and they were not cut or mutilated.

"They were all things that warn of danger to motorists. Somebody could get killed because those signs were stolen, DeSalvo stated. "They were piled there like somebody was going to come back for them. We kept an eye on them for about three days, but nobody came."

Deciding that the sign thief might return at night or another time when no one was watching, DeSalvo took the signs to his house and contacted Beat Four Supervisor Wilmer Seymour, in whose district Bayou Philip is included.

He also contacted the sheriff's department, but had to call the county's central maintenance barn to request a truck when the signs would not fit in the deputy's car.

County Maintenance Superintendent Sam Cuevas inventoried the signs Wednesday and said they included three stop signs, one railroad crossing marker, a speed limit sign, a barricade, a black-and-white danger marker and a barrel marker. The signs still had their poles.

Their estimated value is $150, but it cost twice that much in manpower to put them up, Cuevas added.

Although theft of road signs in Hancock County is so prevalent that his department has spent $14,000 instead of the $9,000 budgeted with more than four months left in the current fiscal year, Cuevas has no idea where the signs were stolen.

"So many are disappearing you can't pin it down," the maintenance superintendent stated.

"One of them's not even ours. We use nuts and bolts and this

Alert neighbor leads to burglary arrest

Bay St. Louis Police arrested a Gulfport man Saturday after he allegedly tried to burglarize a business on Old Spanish Trail.

Bobby W. Smith, 28, 1701 19th St. Gulfport, was arrested at The Corner Market and charged with attempted burglary of a business, according to Investigator Tom Burleson.

At 12:20 a.m. a neighbor reported to Bay Police that there was suspicious activity at the store.

According to Burleson, the subject had driven his car to the scene and, when officers arrived, fled on foot. The officers staked-out the vehicle and arrested Smith when he returned at 4:10 p.m.

"I guess he couldn't do without his car," Burleson said. "We would like to see more people take the time to report suspicious activities. A lot of crimes could be prevented if people would just get involved," Burleson said.

Smith is in Hancock County Jail on a $10,000 bond. The case is still under investigation and another arrest is expected, Burleson said.

David Franklin Galloway, 23, Apt. 23 Sycamore Street was arrested Tuesday and charged with three counts of burglary, including the two with which his brother was charged and one at 246 Washington. He remains in Hancock County Jail on a $30,000 bond.

An elderly resident was at each of the homes at the time it was burglarized. Jewelry, antique coins and cash were stolen.

PASS ACCIDENT—Emergency workers attend to L.J. Hollenberger of Bay St. Louis after an accident in Pass Christian Monday. Hollenberger and his wife, Barbara, received minor cuts and abrasions when their Honda Civic rolled in the westbound lane of Highway 90 near Sherman Avenue.

According to Hollenberger, the car flipped when he veered onto a sandy embankment to avoid another car. "She (the driver) cut in front of me, not more than five feet, and put on her brakes," he said. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

SENIOR CITIZENS HAPPENINGS

By Eve McDonald

CRAFT FAIR SUCCESS

We have lots of folks to thank for the success of our first craft fair. What can be done with cooperation is really significant!

Senior Citizens made so many lovely items to sell and volunteered to work both Saturday and Sunday.

Louise Williams headed the volunteers who worked during the fair including Clothilde Benoit, Juanita Vaughn, Mary Thompson, Lucille and Cyril Reese, Arthur Lienweber, Charles Johnson and our staff. Many others came and donated items.

Sheriff and Bay Police loaned us some very helpful young men who were working off fines.

A really great extra benefit of having these men working with us was that some of the children (including my grandchildren) worked with them and were amazed that "people in jail" are not all terrible people—they were really nice people who just made a mistake.

The sheriff also provided our delicious potato salad. Thanks Ronnie and Ray!

American Legion Post 139 loaned us their drink machine, and the legionnaires worked and sold the drinks for us. Thank you Henry Prevou for setting this up.

Sam Perniciaro and Willard Gavagnie cleaned and cooked our fish for the fish dinner. We were all happy that Willard Gavagnie won our color TV since all of us didn't.

Edmond Fahey furnished and set up our two party tents and donated the balloons. Princess arranged this for us and she knew Edmond would come through!

I hope I haven't left out anyone, if so, it's not because we didn't appreciate you, it's just because I'm not perfect!

SENIOR CENTER WEEK, MAY 14-20

The theme for this week is 'Senior Centers: An Open Door.' We hope many of you will come by and see what goes on at a Senior Center. All of our classes are open for you to come visit. We think the seniors do great work!

We will start the week early with a booth at Shieldsboro Square Shopping Center this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

They are having a fair and are providing us a booth to show off the things our seniors make and we will have some items for sale. Come on by and buy!

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Henry Cook III was all smiles Monday afternoon as he commented about receiving the first big donation for the proposed Vietnam Veterans Memorial.

Cook was among a group who appeared before the Harrison County Board of Supervisors requesting $50,000 over a two-year period for the proposed $1.5 million memorial to be constructed in Biloxi.

Cook, a Bay St. Louis attorney, has taken a 2½-year sabbatical from his practice to work on the fund raising effort.

The memorial will represent the entire state. Cook, along with others, plan to appeal to county, city, and civic organizations across the state in addition to Veterans groups.

Cook has been working very hard on the Vietnam memorial for several months and we feel sure he will be successful, with the help of many in completing the task.

A completion date of November 1991 has been set by the group for the monument.

Congratulations are in order for Bay St. Louis police officers David Parker, Don Osco and Tom Bursleson. Bursleson was promoted from detective to detective sergeant; Osco and Parker to corporal.

The appointments were recently approved by Mayor Victor Frankiewicz upon recommendation by Police Chief Ray Murphy.

It appears this will be a good year for flowers on area magnolia trees.

I have noticed numerous buds on the trees about town and it looks like we will have the beauty of the flowers for many weeks.

Many property owners have planted a magnolia (Magnolia grandiflora) on their property—a nice show of appreciation, since it is the state flower.

The only complaint I hear about the flowering tree is the fact the leaves are long-lasting when they fall to the ground.

I know my lawnmower doesn't like to tangle with them—most of the time it just spits them out whole.

Magnolia flowers are popular with artists. I just wonder if there has ever been an artist in Mississippi who has not painted one of the flowers during his lifetime.

Senators announce $763,000 for USM's polymer science

U.S. Senators Thad Cochran and Trent Lott have announced the University of Southern Mississippi's polymer science department is receiving a $763,000 grant for Navy research.

"This grant is significant for the advancement of the polymer science program at the university," the two senators said in announcing the funding.

USM officials said among eventual goals of the research project for the Navy is development of a "slippery" surface which could enable marine vessels to move faster while utilizing less fuel.

Dr. Charles McCormick and Dr. Roger Hester will head the research for the Navy project, aided by graduate students at the university.

They said the high technology research will be conducted in state-of-the-art laboratories in the Polymer Science Research Facility now under construction on the USM campus.

Dr. McCormick pointed out that preliminary research in the USM laboratories has demonstrated that polymers may be custom tailored to give different levels of frictional reduction in turbulent flow.

"We would like to prepare synthetic polymers which can mimic the effects of mother nature's polymers," he stated.

In addition to the Navy research, the USM program is involved in agricultural applications of polymers and on polymers for enhanced petroleum recovery.

"The university is playing a vital role in the future technological and economic development in this field. The Navy grant and those on agricultural and petroleum applications are of strategic importance to our region. We want Mississippians to know what we can achieve," Dr. McCormick stated.

Cochran and Lott attended groundbreaking ceremonies last summer at USM for the Polymer Science Research Facility.

HNC principal replies to homebound student's plight

Dear Editor:

It is a distressing fact that the barricades of bureaucracy can only be overcome by the dedicated efforts of its bridled employees. Brandon Peterson is a case in point.

When an accident left him hospitalized then bedridden, his parents turned to his school for educational help.

Our first attempt was to have him qualified for the homebound program. State regulations excluded him because his disability was not permanent.

After dozens of conferences and phone calls with doctors and the homebound program coordinator, we began to look in other directions.

When we learned Mrs. Peterson's insurance would pay for a tutor, we went back to work in the hopes of finding someone who could meet the needs of this willing student. Though we all searched, phoned, requested, and conferred, it was Mrs. Peterson who first came upon a tutor. And even though that tutor's sessions never materialized, a volunteer from Hancock County Schools stepped in to fill the void.

The next hurdle involved outlining and organizing Brandon's curriculum. His education had to be handled individually rather than on a classroom basis. It is a continuing duty that will remain intact long after the contents of this letter have been forgotten.

Thank you Mr. Randolph for your support, Dr. Reynolds for your advice, Mr. Fairley for your tutoring, Mrs. Arcement for your lesson plans, and many others involved in this project. And even if Mrs. Peterson does not recognize your efforts, I do and I applaud them.

Sincerely,
Kim Stasny

Special education coordinator explains home tutoring services

To the Editor:

I wish to respond to Mrs. Peterson's letter of May 4 concerning the provision of home tutoring services for her son who is enrolled at Hancock North Central Elementary.

After Mr. Randolph, our superintendent, spoke with Mrs. Peterson, he contacted me and I immediately returned Mrs. Peterson's phone call as did our assistant superintendent James Pair and principal Kim Stasny.

Since that initial contact, Mr. Pair, Mrs. Stasny and I have spoken with Mrs. Peterson, her husband, their youngster's physicians and dentists on numerous occasions. To my knowledge, at no time was a secretary assigned to speak with the Petersons.

It may be beneficial for Mrs. Peterson and your readers to review the following information. By court decree in the state of Mississippi, as elsewhere in the nation, students with medical conditions which are not permanent (i. e., broken limbs, pregnancy) do not qualify for special education under the classification of physically handicapped. This is not district decision, it is a state regulation.

In Hancock County, home tutoring services are provided only to eligible special education pupils per their Individual Education Plans. Hancock County's homebound teachers are paid with federal monies which the U.S. Congress designated to support our special education programs.

No district tax generated funds are used to pay these homebound teachers. These monies come from state appropriations for P.L. 94-142, the Education of All Handicapped Act of 1975.

The government provides us with these monies to address the extensive educational needs of state approved exceptional children. Unfortunately, it is against federal law to spend even $1 of these funds for regular education students such as Mrs. Peterson's son.

Mrs. Peterson is correct. Hancock County does not offer tutoring services for regular education students who are out of school for medical reasons. This is not unusual.

Of the 11 school districts on the Coast, only three have school board policies which establish home tutors for regular education students with temporary (acute) medical problems. Small districts, such as ours, do not have sufficient funds to provide these programs. As an aside, Mrs. Peterson's reference to the program "to tutor kids...that do not want to go to school" is, I believe, the Alternative Education Committee, a citizens' group without official affiliation with any school district.

Well beyond our official capacities, the school's principal, Mrs. Kim Stasny, and I searched for a person who would not charge to provide tutoring for Mrs. Peterson's son. As an alternative, we also looked for a tutor to be paid by the parents when the Petersons received their insurance settlement—the latter being Mrs. Peterson's idea.

Though unsuccessful, recruitment for a potential tutor was initiated by me in my undergraduate special education classes at USM-Gulf Park. Once the Petersons located a tutor, Ms. Stasny informed me that a system was set up so that she could meet almost daily with that individual.

Mr. Walley Fairley, who is a special education teacher in our district, has most generously donated his time to help the Petersons. Mrs. Stasny's meetings with Mr. Fairley assure that the Petersons' son is tutored on the same subjects being presented in his class-

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Slowly, but surely, the Education Reform Act of 1982 seems to be paying off in improving the quality of the state's public school system.

True, the report card Mississippi public school students got the other day in the annual national education performance chart issued by Secretary of Education Lauro Cavazos showed they are still way back in the pack.

But there were enough glimmers of good news in the report as to be encouraging that Mississippi education is on an upward trend.

The most troubling item is that Mississippi students ranked last among the 28 states which use the American College Test (ACT) for college entrance. Mississippi's average score of 16.2 compared with the national average of 18.5.

The good news on the ACT, however, was that Mississippi students ranked third highest among the states in improvement of test scores since 1982.

And while the high school graduation rate nationally showed a decline, Mississippi improved its position by a full percentage point between 1986 and 1987. Since 1982, the state has gone from 47th in the nation to 44th in high school graduation rate.

State Department of Education officials last week estimated that the Mississippi drop-out rate, which stood at 37 percent prior to the enactment of compulsory school attendance in the 1982 reform act is now down to 32 percent.

The national report card had shown Mississippi school teachers' pay still 49th, but this did not take into account this year's $2,000 raise. Based on the latest National Education Association figures, Mississippi is now up to 44th in average teacher salaries.

Mississippi is still last in per pupil expenditure at $2,350 as compared to the national average of $3,977, a fact that Mississippi legislators need to ponder every time they grouse about how much the state is spending for public education.

While Mississippi continues to make slow progress in closing the gap with the rest of the states educationally, comparisons reinforce the reality that this state had a massive deficit to overcome when it began with the reform of 1982.

"It's going to take a long, long time," State Superintendent of Education Richard Boyd admits. But the fact that Mississippi has jumped over some states in such areas as graduation rates and teacher salaries means Mississippi is "working harder" he says.

Such wall charts as the national report card on school measure what comes out at the end of the education pipeline, Boyd points out. The key elements of the Education Reform Act were largely aimed at the "beginning of the pipeline"—kindergartens and teacher assistants.

Kindergartens did not come on line in Mississippi until 1986, and it will be the year 2000 before the first kindergarten class will graduate from high school.

"We are already seeing the benefits of teacher assistants and kindergarten," Boyd said, "I just think this is going to make a difference in our scores in years to come."

Lots of things to improve the quality of public education are happening in the meantime under the 1982 act. For instance, Mississippi is considered the national leader in developing a performance-based school accreditation program.

School districts, in order to maintain their accreditation must show their students have achieved certain scores in the Basic Skills Assessment Program (BSAP), the Functional Literacy Exam (FLE) and the Stanford Achievement Test.

Last fall, the State Board of Education put 17 school districts on probation for failing to reach the required level of scores. To work their way off probation, the districts must file remediation plans with the state department and begin implementing those plans.

One remarkable by-product of the implementation of the Education Reform Act has been voluntary moves in the last couple of months to consolidate high schools in at least four counties—Wilkinson, Amite, Kemper and Wayne.

In Wayne County, for example, the county board of education voted 5 to 0 to consolidate four high schools into one.

Why the sudden movement to consolidation when the subject was anathema two years ago? I think they saw what was facing them on accreditation," Boyd said.

one's riveted. But we'll go ahead and use it." All of the recovered signs are usable and will be put up again as they are needed. The $14,000 does not include the manhours for installations. Some of the signs had to be changed out as roads were named for the county's Enhanced-911 emergency service project, but Cuevas said his department had anticipated that. "You can't plan for theft... We've had a lot of overnight disappearances," he added.

Cuevas said the problem seems more prevalent in the lower end of the county, particularly around Lower Bay Road, in recent weeks. However, investigations of sign thefts are generally pursued more than in the more northern regions because the population is higher.

"It's not an isolated incident by any means. It's a countywide problem," he explained.

Aluminum signs are the most popular target and as a result, the county is considering returning to the old metal style.

"They deteriorate faster but they're not as popular with whoever steals them," he said.

Neighborhood Watch groups or anyone who sees a sign theft or finds a stolen sign can call the central barn at 255-3367.

"If you find them, we'll gladly pick them up," Cuevas said.

"When you try to do good for the people of the county and someone comes behind you and tries to destroy that good, it is disheartening," he added.

Seymour was more concerned about the dangerous possibilities stolen signs represent. He said he worries that a driver unfamiliar with the county's roads will meet with an accident at an unmarked curve or railroad crossing.

"A lot of them are put up to save people's lives and that's why I think we should all be more on the look-out for people tearing down signs," he said.

Seymour praised the Bayou Philip Neighborhood Watch for assisting the county.

"I'm proud of them for looking after their area," he said. "These people take care of each other and are very civic-minded; I'm proud to be associated with them. They could have just ignored it."

FOUR OUR LADY ACADEMY students, including, from left, Mallory Mestayer, Rebecca Kinney, Jennifer Penegy and Shannon Maggio, will leave Friday for Annapolis, Md., where they will compete for the Mallory Trophy in the U.S. High School Sailing Tournament finals. The students, with five to seven years of sailing experience each, were among the 26 teams in the country named to compete. They will sail 420s and flying juniors Saturday and Sunday in the round robin tournament. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Hattiesburg facility director to discuss alternative school

BY DENA BISNETTE

Dr. Thomas Prentiss of the Hattiesburg Alternative School will address the Hancock County Alternative School Committee at 10 a.m. May 18 at the Bay Senior High School boardroom.

Geraldine Lang, chairperson of the committee, said committee representatives visited Hattiesburg Alternative School Monday and decided to ask Prentiss to speak about his program.

Lang said the committee, now working toward a non-profit corporation status, hopes to establish a similar program for local students.

For this reason, she is inviting parents to attend the meeting and hear Prentiss speak.

"Parents are invited to attend the discussion, as we wish to encourage their participation as much as possible," she stated.

All committee members are asked to bring their handouts from the previous meeting.

There's a card for every mom

There are about 80,000,000 mothers in this land of almost 250,000,000 U.S. citizens. We will send out more than 125,000,000 greeting cards to make Mother's Day, May 14, 1989, another "day to remember."

The concept of sending our mothers greetings started with Anna Reeves Jarvis, who urged that children mark Mother's Day with a special note or letter. That was in 1908 when people lived less complex lives and letter writing was not yet an endangered art.

The greeting card has filled the void. Cards of every type and description are now available wherever people shop. There is a large variety to choose from. Sentimental observations, humorous concepts, contemporary renditions in photos or art, respectful, sassy, color or black and white cards. Some come in the form of videotaped messages!

Just about every greeting card has some space for you to pen in a very personal message of remembrance, just as Anna Reeves Jarvis planned 82 years ago.

Buy your card before May 14th and mail it early to make certain your greeting arrives on time.

You can buy and mail a greeting card to your mother for just about a dollar. This is a small price for a lot of joy.

Celebrate Mother's Week with flowers

Honoring mom with a gift of flowers during Mother's Week, May 8th to 14th, is a time-honored way to express your warm feelings of love and affection.

More than 1.7 million FTD wire orders for flowers and plants were placed for Mother's Week last year, according to Florists' Transworld Delivery Association (FTDA), the industry's leading floral delivery network.

The holiday is the second busiest after Christmas for FTD flowers-by-wire orders. FTD anticipates that this year, floral gifts will continue to grow in popularity.

Why are flowers such a popular gift choice? According to nationwide research conducted by FTD, Americans perceive flowers as the warmest gift available for expressing feelings to others.

The findings were part of a general survey of consumer preferences and purchasing behavior for such gifts as flowers, greeting cards, perfume, boxed candy and books.

"These findings are especially relevant with regard to Mother's Day," says Jim Durio, FTD president. "Flowers allow you to send mom a special expression of love; they're great for saying what we often have trouble articulating to one another, our feelings of appreciation and affection."

Durio also adds that a gift of flowers can be designed to suit any taste and can convey your own unique, personal message to mom.

Your local FTD florist can suggest a variety of gift choices. From bouquets and flowering plants to corsages and loose, cut blooms, flowers can communicate a message of love to mom, whether she lives next door or in another part of the world.

Through their worldwide flowers-by-wire network, FTD florists can deliver a floral gift virtually anywhere.

To help in selecting the right gift for your mom, FTD has designed two new arrangements especially for the holiday. The Porcelain Pitcher Bouquet is a bright arrangement of pastel flowers arranged in a porcelain pitcher accented with a floral design. Mom will enjoy using the pitcher as a creamer long after Mother's Week had passed.

The Crystal 'N' Blooms Bouquet is a gift of beautiful spring flowers arranged in a hand-frosted, 24-percent lead crystal bowl designed with an exquisite floral pattern.

A personalized liner protects the reusable crystal bowl, which will bring happy memories long after the holiday has passed.

FOOD

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

There's so much more to the avocado beyond guacamole, delicious as that dip is, and so many more ways to enjoy the avocado beyond avocado halves on a bed of lettuce!

If you've experienced this ages-old delight only as a dip or salad, you've missed a lot of good taste treats, all around the clock! The avocado has been around for quite a long, long time, but it is only in comparatively recent times that many cooks in our country have made fuller use of it.

The Spanish conquistadores pronounced the avocado food "fit for the gods." It was Hernando Cortez, the intrepid Spanish soldier of fortune, who was the first white man to set foot in Mexico City, in 1519, so records tell us. On that historic day, he also discovered that most versatile fruit of the New World, the avocado.

The conquistador's historian, Oviedo, described the avocado thusly: "In the center of the fruit is a seed like a peeled chestnut. And between this and the rind is the part which is eaten, which is abundant and is a paste similar to butter and of very good taste." That holds true today.

From Mexico the avocado spread into Peru, next showing up in the West Indies, where new varieties were developed. The first planting of avocados in California was recorded in 1848 a few miles east of Los Angeles, and avocado growing is now a thriving industry in California.

The ripe avocado, the consistency of fresh, cold butter, is an epicure's dream; the unripe avocado is tasteless. To check, press the avocado between your hands—it should "give" a little; if it doesn't, let it ripen for a day or two at room temperature.

In many homes in Mexico and on down into South America, the mashed avocado replaces butter as a spread for bread, so much so that Mexicans refer to it as the "poor man's butter."

Avocados are delicious, diced, added to scrambled eggs for breakfast, and as I've pointed out, a tasty spread for your breakfast toast. Avocado halves make delicious containers for shrimp or chicken or whatever salad you wish, then you devour the tasty insides of the shell.

And, there's chilled and oh-so-creamy avocado soup; avocado and onion and orange salad; baked avocados—so much more. I like to serve steaming chili in avocado halves, enjoying the taste contrast of the fiery chili and the smooth and creamy avocado. Try it!

Add slices of avocado to your standard bacon-lettuce-and-tomato sandwich or serve an avocado whip for dessert. Try these avocado delights, starting with the traditional and well known:

2 cups mashed avocados, after paring, of course
1/3 cup grated onion
1/4 to 1/3 cup lime juice, or to taste
1/4 cup chopped or minced pimientos

Pepper, salt, hot pepper sauce to taste
Mash with a fork enough peeled avocados to make the two cups. Combine with the remaining ingredients, mix together and chill the mixture, covered, for at least two hours. Serve with tortilla chips or rounds. (2 1/2 cups dip).

And, for a change from the ubiquitous garlic bread as a meal accompaniment (chicken, spaghetti and so on) try:

AVOCADO SPREAD
1 mashed medium avocado
1/2 tsp. garlic salt
3 or 4 dashes hot sauce
Pare the avocado, of course, and mash it. Add salt and seasoning. Blend together, spread on slices of French bread (heated) or briefly and lightly broil after spreading.

And, for dessert, try:

AVOCADO WHIP
2 large ripe avocados
1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
2 Tblsp. lime juice.
Cut the avocados in half lengthwise, and remove pulp very carefully, keeping skins intact and reserving the skins. Mash the pulp till smooth, beating in sugar and lime juice well. Spoon back into skins and chill. (Four servings). Or:

AVOCADO CREAM
2 large avocados, pared
3/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup heavy cream
3 Tblsp. lime juice
1/4 tsp. salt
In a blender puree the avocados, transfer puree to a bowl. Blend in the sugar, two tablespoons at a time, and add the cream, lime juice and salt. Divide among four parfait glasses. Chill for five hours or more.

The avocado, by the way, is also healthful for you—no cholesterol, low in calories despite its creaminess—and its fat content is the "good" kind, mostly unsaturated. What more can you ask?

Well, a bit more—after you've enjoyed the avocado, let the inside of the peel feed your skin! Yes, it contains one of the finest skin oils around. To find it, scrape the peel until you find a somewhat abrasive sandy surface, oily to the touch, and rub on your skin for those rough spots.

And, if that still isn't enough for your money, there's the bonus of a handsome house plant or tree! The classic method is to suspend the seed, broad end down, in a glass or jar of water (using toothpicks) until it "sprouts." Or plant in the earth with half of the pointed end exposed. And enjoy.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, MAY 11, 1989-1B

SECTION B

Time Out

By Dena Bisnette

Golf, always popular in this area, is being played more as the weather gets nicer.

The Sea Coast Echo consistently receives news of golf tournaments, both private and public, at Diamondhead.

Now, I had written a little about golf before I moved to the Gulf Coast, but from what I hear, sometimes I think "Golf" ought to be spelled "Gulf". I've met a good many people who play all over South Mississippi and Louisiana and have complimented the Diamondhead facility.

When I travel northward to visit the Hattiesburg area and tell people I work in Bay St. Louis, many want to know how far that is from Diamondhead and when the next tournament for non-members will be played. A couple have even asked whether property fronting the golf course is still available.

You take a lot of things for granted when you live here and often don't think about your reputation elsewhere, but I can see Hancock County has made a name for itself in the golf world.

Late registration is now being accepted for Friday's Hancock County Heart Association golf festival at Diamondhead.

Players should register at 8 a.m. at the Diamondhead Pro Shop but they have a choice of shotgun starts at 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. For more information, call the pro shop or Steve Planchard at Hancock Bank, 255-2660.

Charleen B. Curt of Orlando, Fla., has written to The Sea Coast Echo about former Bay St. Louis resident Ron Curet, who has been making quite a name for himself in bass fishing.

If that fellow you saw recently on ESPN's "Sportsman's Challenge" looked familiar, it might have been Curet, whose parents are Ruth Curet of Bay St. Louis and the late W.A. "Fred" Curet. He was fishing with Lonnie Stanley of Stanley Jigs on the Harris chain of lakes in Florida.

Charleen says he is looking forward to doing some more television programs with professional bass fishermen in July.

Curet finished 19th in a field of more than 200 semifinalists in last year's Florida Bass N' Buddy Tournament Tournament trail and has won several Central Florida bass tournaments. Maybe he'll share a few of the secrets of his success when he gets on TV again!

Head Basketball Coach Ed Murphy and Assistant Football Coach Chuck Driesbach will be among the speakers at the District I Alumni Club meeting Wednesday, May 24, at the Broadwater Beach Country Club in Gulfport.

The meeting begins with a 7 p.m. social hour followed by a club program, which will include a video presentation of Ole Miss highlights in athletics and academics.

Tickets are $10 and should be reserved in advance. Call Marilyn Michel at 452-4429 for reservations.

Quad S Company at Stennis Space Center is sponsoring a junior fishing rodeo from 7 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Saturday, with Sunday as rain date.

Participants up to 15 years old may register at the spillway, just inside the space center's south gate. Bring your own fishing gear, but there is no entry fee and refreshments will be available.

Prizes will include several savings bonds and various types of fishing gear. And, if the grown-ups aren't too tired when the fishing is over, you kids can make a day of it by dropping in at the Stennis Visitors' Center for a tour.

More information is available from Quad S at 688-3636.

The March of Dimes is sponsoring its eighth annual softball tournament May 19, 20 and 21 at Milner Stadium in Biloxi. The ASA-sanctioned tourney includes men's and women's divisions and the registration fee is $100.

For more information, call the March of Dimes office at 896-0886.

Good luck to the Pearl River Community College Wildcats, who are playing Hinds Community College for the state junior college baseball title today. The game was supposed to be played at Mississippi College in Clinton Tuesday, but as of our press time, had been tentatively rescheduled.

Hancock Medical Center's seventh annual Feelin' Good Run, Bike and Walk will begin at the hospital at 8 a.m. Saturday. Included will be a 5K run, 10-mile bike loop and one-mile fun run and walk.

Entry fee is $10 except for children under 12 in the one-mile, which is $5. There will be T-shirts and trophies and more information is available from Hancock Medical Center's administration office, 467-9081.

Anyone who wants to be a lifeguard this summer and needs a lifesaving course may want to take the one the Hancock County Red Cross is sponsoring Monday from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. at the home of instructor Shawn Tusa, 308 Ballview Court, Waveland.

Information is available at 467-3999 or 467-7609.

Don't forget! The Sea Coast Echo can run sports and sports-related items for you in Time Out. To submit items either bring them by our office by Tuesday, preferably before noon, or call Dena Bisnette at 467-5474. You're also welcome to mail them in, but be sure you send them early enough that they'll arrive here by Tuesday.

Riding students learn to fly

BY DENA BISNETTE

Auriol Hessemer's students eventually learn to fly through the air—on the back of a jumping horse.

Hessemer teaches skills once associated with gentility—English-style riding, jumping and dressage—at Equine Inns in Pass Christian. She also trains horses.

In doing so, she provides students with physical and thinking skills which transcend riding.

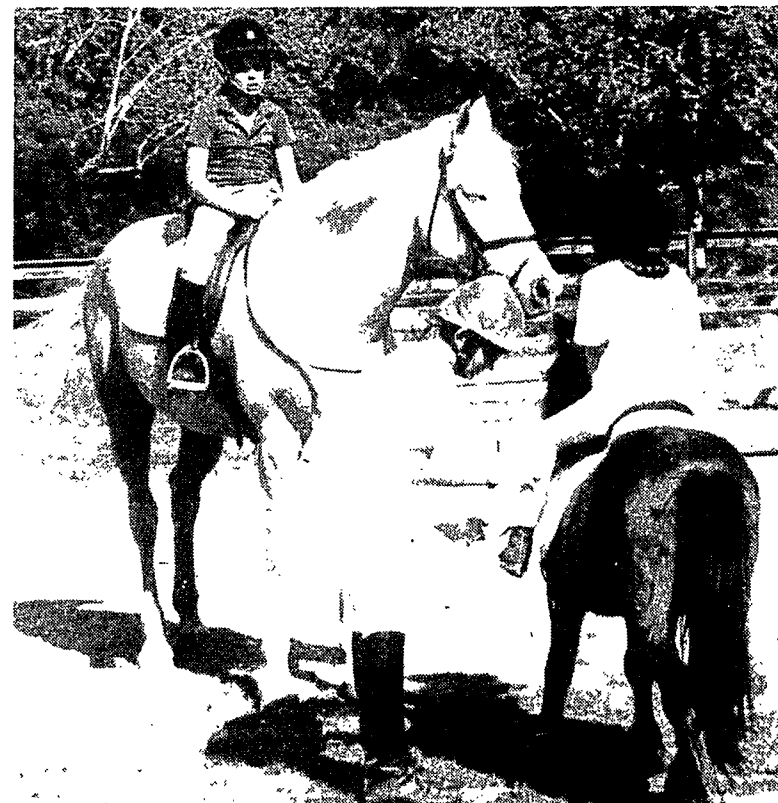

Auriol Hessemer

She has about a dozen students now—but not all come to Pass Christian to work with her. Several times a week, she goes to them at stables in other parts of Mississippi or Louisiana.

Her students range in age from the six-year-old who has joined an older sibling in Hessemer's class to a 74-year-old U.S. Cavalry veteran in Covington, La., who wanted to learn to ride horses again.

However, she will take children as young as four, if they want to learn to ride.

Richard Mestayer, John Bezou, Ellie Tor

"They learn more slowly, but if they want to do it, really, why shouldn't they have the fun?" she said.

Hessemer's riding school is one of only a few in South Mississippi and was made possible when the owners of the property, Donald and Kathleen Theriot, agreed to let her bring her horses there after her previous facility at Bay Cove Marina closed.

She has been teaching riding since before she left her native England at the age of 21, when she came to the U.S. with a friend to accept a job as a legal secretary in the New Orleans area.

"I love riding. I've been riding all my life," she said.

While in New Orleans, she met her husband Donald Hessemer.

She taught riding there from until 1974, when the couple opened their own business in Covington. In addition to teaching riding, they operated their own shop, selling English-type tack, riding clothes and boots, and related items.

In 1981, Donald Hessemer became one of the original developers at Bay Cove and they sold the shop, moving to Bay St. Louis, which Hessemer says she loves. She moved her riding school to Pass Christian after her husband ended his involvement in the Bay Cove project.

She teaches at least two students every afternoon, with the mornings reserved for private or semi-private instruction and the rest of her time reserved for training horses.

Hessemer believes in taking her students from the ground up, so if they are not riding, they are working on horse management skills, in the stable, on tack care, grooming and other projects. Horses are even included in the more recreational activities, such as trail-riding.

She also provides a horsemanship day camp every summer, with this year's scheduled for Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from June 5 through Aug. 25.

Campers meet from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. to learn riding at all levels, on the flat and over fences and horse care and management. Other activities such as games, mounted and unmounted swimming and videos are included.

She and Kathleen Stewart serve as instructors, along with the older members of a local U.S. Pony Club chapter based partly at her school and partly at a stable off Kiln-Delisle Road.

While Pony Club requires that the rider have his own horse, the camps and lessons do not.

Although Hessemer currently has equal numbers of male and female students, she has found in the past that riding appeals more to girls than to boys.

The skill, however, does appeal to a particular group of people, for several reasons.

One is that many people who send their children to her are already familiar with dressage, which Hessemer calls "the art form of riding."

"Dressage, classical horsemanship, is at least 500 years old," she said. "Jumping kind of goes along with foxhunting, and a willing and bold jumper who takes long strides with a lot of suspension," Hessemer explained. Crosses including the Arabian and thoroughbred characteristics often have this ability.

Some horses are easier to work with than others, but like all animals, their behavior can vary by the day.

Sanders Kane rides Royal

that's also been around hundreds of years."

"This is the same kind of riding you see in the Olympics, but at a much lower level."

"I think a lot of the parents of my students grew up riding and children naturally love horses and want to ride, too. When one starts, they all want to."

Her students also have the opportunity to compete in various shows. During the busier parts of the year, fall and spring, there are shows and rallies about every other weekend.

"We have to slow down in the summer, you know, because it gets so hot," she explained.

Pony Club also has rallies, including a regional combined training rally, coming up in June.

She also competes on her own horse, Scimitar, the only one she has who was specifically bred for dressage. Dressage horses may be of any breed or combination of breeds, because a particular style of motion is their most desirable trait.

"He has to have a good temperament and the right movement for dressage. He should be

A student must first learn to balance himself on the horse, but then learns teamwork with the animal.

"It takes a lot of coordination and suppleness," Hessemer said. "One of the most important things you do is learn to separate the use of your hands and feet."

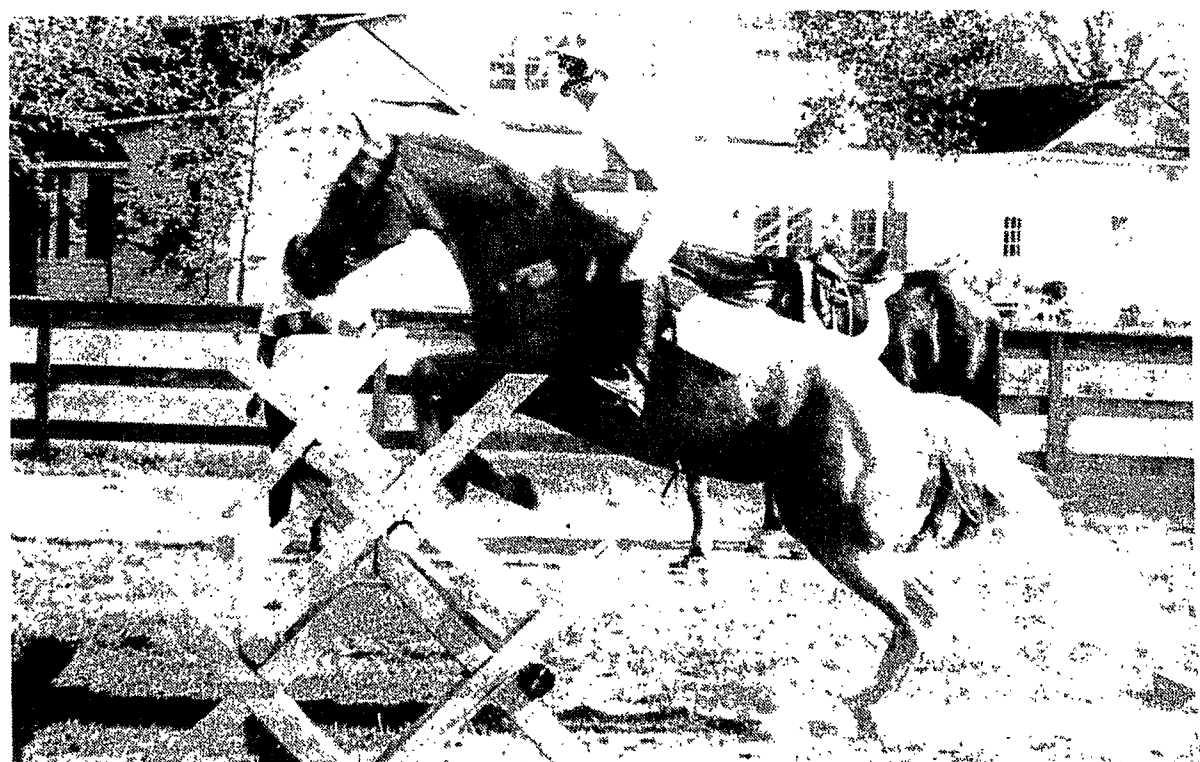

"There are two creatures that have to think. How they bond has a lot to do with it."

The children learn teamwork as well, because Hessemer sometimes has as many as six working at the same time in the smaller of her two arenas. They are mounted on animals ranging from the taller-than-average Scimitar to Hessemer's pony, Tiny Tim, and must not only practice skills but avoid getting in each other's way.

The larger arena is for the more advanced jumping in which her more skilled students compete.

All students also learn responsibility, because they must care for the horse they ride.

"The most important thing people should know about riding is it's fun," she added.

Brooke Hartwell demonstrates her jumping style.

How to jerk a bass

Bass fishermen have given nicknames to many of the types of lures they use, including such designations as 'slush baits,' 'stick baits,' and 'jerk baits.'

Of these, the 'jerk baits'—the long, thin, minnow-imitation plugs that float at rest but dive when pulled or 'jerked'—can be among the most effective lures to use for spring and early summer bass.

"The lures are hard to use," explains Evinrude Pro Staff member Denny Brauer, "and I believe that's why more anglers don't use them."

"The lures have to be worked with a hard, constant jerk of the rod at the same time you turn the reel handle. It's the same way you work certain topwater lures, and after a while, fatigue sets in."

When jerked, says Brauer, the lures dart forward erratically like injured minnows. They are particularly effective when fishing for suspended bass, although the Evinrude pro has used them successfully along the edges of grasslines, around points, and on the ends of deep bluffs.

"Throughout the spring months we use these lures as w follow bass in from deeper water to the spawning areas," he explains. "Then, after the spawn, we follow the fish back out."

"I really think these lures can be used year-round if an angler can work fairly shallow water with heavy cover."

Brauer's favorite fishing technique with jerk baits is to make a long cast and reel the lure down to its working depth. Then he uses a two-step cadence to work the lure. He snaps his rod tip twice in rapid succession to make the lure jump forward twice. His favorite depth is between five and eight feet.

"The best thing a fisherman can do when learning to use these lures is practice working them in a swimming pool so he sees what the lure does," says the Evinrude pro. "The jerk baits are just like any other types of lures in that they can be retrieved a number of different ways."

"The more familiar an angler is with these lures, the more effective he will be in using them."

Another technique Brauer uses, especially around isolated cover, is to keep the lure working in basically the same spot over and over.

This is done by snapping the rod once to jerk the lure forward, then giving back slack line so the lure actually floats backward. Another quick jerk moves it forward again, and the slack line lets it float back once more.

"At other times you'll see bass actually stalking a jerk bait," adds Brauer. "They'll follow and watch the lure right up to the surface. When that happens, a quick jerk that makes the lure look like it's trying to escape often triggers a strike."

Striped bass restoration efforts continue at GCRL

Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs will be able to continue ongoing striped bass restoration efforts with a $33,333 grant from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS).

The funding will provide partial support for the seventh year of the Mississippi-Alabama Cooperative Striped Bass Restoration program sponsored jointly by the USFWS and the National Marine Fisheries Service.

GCRL striped bass project leader Larry Nicholson explained that the laboratory has been working with the Claude Peteet Mariculture Center in Gulf Shores, Ala. to raise striped bass to be tagged and released into Mississippi and Alabama coastal streams in this cooperative effort.

GCRL has been involved in a variety of projects since 1967 that have intended to reestablish local striped bass sport fishing. To date, more than 10 million striped bass fingerlings have been released into the coastal tributaries of Mississippi, and recent reports of area landings indicate the success of these replenishment efforts.

LAKE KARIBA

One of the greatest lakes in the world is Lake Kariba in southern Africa.

Thirty years ago, conservationists predicted disaster for the region where a dam was to be built blocking the great Zambezi River. The dam, however, has proved to be a great boost for African wildlife.

'Nature' at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 14, on Mississippi ETV, looks at Kariba: the Lake That Made a Dent' and examines the multitude of birds that feed on the abundant fish in the area, the crocodiles, elephants, lions and even the endangered Black Rhino that have gravitated to this man-made lake.

Course teaches students to be responsible hunters

BY D.C. HARVILL

Appropriate training is a requirement for participation in most potentially dangerous activities but, until recently, Mississippi hunters could wield the weapon of their choice without knowing a shotgun shell from a golf club—often to the detriment of themselves, others and the sport.

Thanks to hunter education courses, like one being offered at Bay Junior High School this semester, that situation is changing.

Recently, the state adopted a law requiring that all hunters born after January 1, 1972 receive training through a certified hunter education program before they can buy a hunting license.

The course, being taught on a volunteer basis by Antoine Boyd of Waveland, covers use of modern firearms, muzzleloaders, and archery equipment. It includes special sections devoted to firearms safety, hunting ethics and responsibility, handling game after the kill and wildlife conservation.

While they receive no school credit for the course, approximately 100 students are taking it on a daily basis, Boyd said.

At the end of the course, the students will go to a range to shoot pellet guns and will get to talk to a local wildlife conservation officer and the state supervisor for the hunter safety program.

Upon successful completion of the course, they will receive certificates and certification cards.

attitude toward hunters.

"But, the course isn't just for hunters, it is designed for anyone who goes outdoors or has a firearm and wants to handle it safely. We also teach wildlife identification and how people affect wildlife habitat," Boyd said.

Boyd, a certified hunter education instructor, also teaches the course through the 4-H program, the Hancock County Library and at the Fenton Community Center.

An increased number of recent hunting accidents has increased the demand for hunter safety. The number of property owners closing their land to hunting, due to irresponsible hunters, is another indication that hunter education is needed, Boyd said.

Through the education programs and use of hunter orange clothing, the sport can be made safer, the instructor said.

"Less than 17 percent of the people in the state and less than 11 percent in the nation hunt. We are a minority and there is growing pressure against hunters, so we must improve our image," he said.

The course is being offered through the school to help draw interest from teachers. But it has received positive response from teachers and parents, he said.

"The parents appreciate having it at school during regular school hours, so they don't have to go out of their way for their children to attend the course," Boyd said.

The course is offered free of charge. It is paid for by sportsmen through state and federal taxes levied on sporting supplies and the purchase of duck stamps.

Hunting may be considered primarily a male sport, but a number of girls also are taking the course, Boyd said.

"We are trying to make people more responsible hunters. By teaching them to be responsible, we may change the attitude of hunters and the public's

Memories on paper

Historical society trading tea for documents, information

BY JANET MCQUEEN

The Hancock County Historical Society invites you for traditional English tea and delectable baked goodies—in exchange for information about early residents and old buildings in the area.

A Historical Society member will host the afternoon teas at the Kate Lobrano home, 108 Cue St., Bay St. Louis, weekdays from 3-5 p.m.

"We would like for people to bring old photographs and documents, such as the family records often found in bibles, for us to copy," said President Charles Gray.

Gray is attempting to detail the history of each home and business in Bay St. Louis by documenting structural changes and changes of ownership.

"We would like to assemble photographs of every building that has ever stood—and keep them in sequence in a reference book," he added.

The society already boasts

40,000 documents. They are housed at present in the group's headquarters on Court Street, adjacent to Ruth's Bakery.

Gray hopes to replace records lost in hurricanes and fires. He plans to leave no stone unturned in recording the chronology of events that shaped the city that was incorporated in 1818, 20 years earlier than any other city on the Gulf Coast.

LOBRANO HOME

The Historical Society is extremely proud of the restoration of the small shotgun home on Cue Street that they hope will become "a museum and social gathering place." Furnishings have been accumulated through the generosity of local residents.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Davidson of Bay St. Louis contributed a rosewood Victorian side chair, room size rug, two mantels, a walnut armoire and polished brass lamp.

A living room sofa and butler's table were donated by an anonymous patron, as were a dining table and four chairs.

"Local dealers in the Antique Merchants Association have been more than generous in offering us discounts when we have needed to purchase items," said society treasurer Buddy Ohman.

Items on loan include several paintings courtesy of Jake Jacob and a mantel clock from Betty Burnett.

Kitchen and bath fixtures were contributed by Irwin and Pat Cucullu and Ruth and Jim Thompson. Carpentry work was donated by Doug Kraus.

Gray is particularly proud of several "treasures" on loan from Emily deMontluzin, including delicate lace period dresses belonging to the family of her late husband, Rene de Montluzin.

Mrs. deMontluzin also loaned pieces of handpainted china, custom made for Miss Josie Welch, a proprietor whose beachfront gift shop served as a clearing house for information in the early 1900's.

Welch commissioned a German factory to produce likenesses of her shop and other landmarks in Bay St. Louis on bone china. The shop perished in a fire which destroyed the beachfront structures from the Railroad Bridge to Bookter Street in 1907.

NEW MEMBERS, PROJECTS

Growing interest in the work of the Historical Society is evidenced by their membership roster, which has increased from 31 members to more than 200 in two years.

Plans for a Junior Historical Society are in the works. Members are working with local high schools in hopes of cultivating interest in the idea.

The group also hopes to establish a history scholarship. In an "oral interview" program, young people would interview senior citizens about their early memories and experiences, thus inspiring a new generation of history fans.

ANTIQUE LACE GOWNS—Delicate heirloom dresses worn by ancestors of the late Rene deMontluzin are on loan to the Hancock County Historical Society. From left are Charles

Historical Society Note Cards

Drawings by local artists reproduced on parchment note cards are offered for sale at Shieldsboro Antiques, with proceeds going to the Hancock County Historical Society. Pictured is the Breath-Monet residence, originally purchased in 1838. Facade alterations were made in the late 19th century. The drawing pictured is by Edmee Cagle.

Shieldsboro Antiques profits benefit Historical Society

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Shieldsboro Antiques is the result of the generosity of local residents. The small shop features donated and consigned "treasures" sold by volunteer members of the Hancock County Historical Society.

It evolved accidentally, as the society received items for their new headquarters—the Kate Lobrano house on Cue Street—that they could not use.

The items were tagged and displayed in the Historical Society office on Court Street, and were sold in short order. A fundraiser was born!

Historical Society President Charles Gray credits Betty Burnett and Marion Cook for setting up the store, Buddy Ohman for expert bookkeeping and volunteers Joan Breeden, Millie Brodtmann, Ruth Chambers, Betty Garritty, Eleanor Hill, Frances Crawley, Becky Weston and Trudy Stanton for staffing the shop.

Proceeds from Shieldsboro Antiques are used to fund the society's civic projects and furnish the Lobrano house.

The shop is open Tuesday through Saturday from 1-4 p.m. and features items such as china, crystal, antiques, jewelry and nautical pieces.

Anyone interested in donating or consigning items with good resale value may contact Ruth Thompson at 467-8201 or stop by the shop adjacent to Ruth's Bakery, 128 Court Street, Bay St. Louis. Additional volunteers to staff Shieldsboro Antiques are also needed.

Osteoporosis can be prevented

May 8-14 is Osteoporosis Week. Most of us are aware of osteoporosis, the brittle-bone disease that hits women in their 50s and 60s. Few of us, however, realize that the disease takes years to develop, or that the time to prevent the disease is now.

Bone loss can begin as early as the teenage years—the loss may be relatively small at the time, but over a period of years, enough of the bone may disappear to put you at serious risk of osteoporosis.

In order to withstand some of the inevitable losses that occur with the aging process, it is vital to take preventive steps now while you can still build the necessary strong bone mass needed later in life.

How to do it depends not only on proper diet and exercise, but also by simply understanding the bone process and how it works. The more you know about your bones, the better you will care for them.

Bones are constantly being broken down and rebuilt. If you looked at a cross-section of bone through a high-powered microscope, you would witness this process occurring at different stages.

Cells that work particularly on bone reconstruction are transported through the bloodstream. Demolition cells called osteoclasts destroy old bone tissue and actually create little cavities in the skeletal structure. The bone destroyed by this action is absorbed into the blood.

Builder cells called osteoblasts fill the empty spaces with collagen, a protein which acts as a sort of concrete mix.

This mixture eventually hardens to bone with the help of the super-hardening agent calcium, which with the help of vitamin D enters the bloodstream through your diet. This process is known as calcification.

As soon as the entire construction process is finished with one section of bone, the cycle is repeated. At any time, the process is occurring at different stages throughout the skeleton.

Remodeling agents can be working on one part of your arm, wrist or leg, while at the same time demolition cells are working on another spot.

From the start of one bone-formation cycle to the start of the next takes usually about four months when bones are at their healthiest. As an individual grows older or if he encounters internal obstacles, the process can take longer.

The entire procedure is carefully controlled by a complex network of hormones.

For example, when osteoclasts work to create cavities in the bone, their activity is triggered by parathyroid and thyroid glands in your neck.

Prostaglandin directs the demolition cells, while estrogen and calcitonin monitor to make sure too much demolition is not achieved. The result is a "remodeling" process that is guarded by its own system of checks and balances to ensure that bone will not be lost too rapidly.

How can you prevent the onset of thinning bones? First, make sure you are getting enough bone-building calcium in your diet.

The Recommended Daily Allowance is 800 to 1,000 milligrams, or the equivalent of four 8-ounce glasses of milk.

Another step toward prevention is exercise—running, walking, aerobic dancing and court sports, such as tennis, all are suitable exercises.

For more information about osteoporosis, see your doctor.

Top scholars recognized in SSC Honors Convocation

The 19th annual Honors Convocation ceremony for St. Stanislaus High School was held May 1 on the school campus. This event is sponsored annually by the Brother Peter Basso Chapter of the National Honor Society.

The purpose of this ceremony is to recognize the top scholars in the school and to induct new members into the National Honor Society.

The opening invocation was given by Pat Fellows, vice president of the National Honor Society. Brother Paul Montero, principal of St. Stanislaus, distributed the awards to the students.

The President's Honor Roll is the highest academic honor a student can receive at St. Stanislaus. To be included on this honor roll a student must achieve a perfect 4.0 grade point average for the school year. Plaques recognizing membership on the President's Honor Roll were awarded to Michael Cromwell, Scott Niolet, Elliot Selle, Mansel Bell and Wayne Murphy.

The Academic Honor Roll is earned by students making the Alpha Honor Roll for the school year and possessing a 3.5 grade point average or better. The following students earned Academic Honor Roll:

The National Honor Society Service Award is given to a student who has devoted many hours in serving his peers, school and community. This service award was merited by Chris Arcement.

Ben Schepens was recognized for being valedictorian of the 1989 graduating class and also for being the Star Student for the 1988-89 school session.

Jimmy Benigno was recognized for being named salutatorian of the graduating class.

John Endom, president of the National Honor Society at St. Stanislaus, inducted the new members into the Brother Peter Basso Chapter of the National Honor Society.

These new members are Scott Arcement, Chan Calnido, Marc Distefano, Scott Heitzmann, George Holder, Paul Johnson, Manning Montagnet, Do Nguyen, Tony Nguyen, Scott Niolet, Michael Thomas and Joe Williams.

The following students were recognized for having been previously inducted into the National Honor Society and for having remained in good standing: Chris Arcement, Jimmy Benigno, Carl Bolian, John Cantwell, Mike Cromwell, Noah Denson, John Endom, Pat Fellows, Keith Harrigan, Terry LeBourgeois, Scott Liebkemann, Roger Maxey, Ben Schepens and Robert Schutt.

Brother Paul Montero addressed the students and their parents and friends. Brother Aquin Gauthier, director of public relations at St. Stanislaus, served as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Richard Cromwell, National Honor Society moderator, organized the ceremony. Mrs. Jeannie Ryan was in charge of the reception following the program, and she was assisted by St. Stanislaus cheerleaders Anna Dean, Destin Black, Stacy O'Brien, Tina Ryan, Cindy Pitale, Catherine Ohman, Laura Haas and Tammy Satchfield.

Bay High attends conference

By Shenea' Bell and Kecia Walker

Bay Senior High YMCA attended the 24th session Youth Conference in Jackson April 19-22.

Members were required to prepare a bill and debate on it at the conference. The bill was first talked and debated on in committee and if passed, went on to the House and Senate.

In the House and Senate the same procedure was taken. If passed, the bill was sent to the official Youth Governor, Willie Kennedy of Moss Point.

Marty Morreale, president of the Bay Senior High YMCA, served as a House messenger at the conference. She was required to take messages from the House to the Senate.

Vice president of the Bay High club, Courtney Thomas, served as First Lady. She had various duties while attending.

Liz Cote, secretary of the YMCA, along with Heather Lord, carried out the duties of committee chairmen. This required keeping an accurate count of passed and filed bills and conducting the committees in an experienced fashion.

Michelle Killough, an active member of the school newspaper, also took part in the press at Youth Conference. Killough's main task was to interview conference officials and receive publications for the Youth Conference newspaper. The press was required to gather information throughout the conference and present a newspaper upon departure.

Jennifer Johnson served as the governor's aid. She was required to take care of all his business matters including scheduling appointment and managing his office.

During the Youth Conference there was also a need for pages. Junior high students attending as pages were Brennan Compretta, Julie Lagasse, Lisa Moran, Frank Penton, Robin Schambach and LaChina Tillman. Their sponsor was Mrs. Debbie Moran, sixth grade English teacher at the school.

Other active members from Bay High attending the Youth Conference were Todd Barber, Shenea' Bell, Kristi Breland, Trent Farve, Shelly Fayard, Nicole Gorman, Kanta' Haynes, Stacey James, Tracey James, Jessica Johnson, Amy Rupp, Karen Terrell and Kecia Walker.

Sponsor of the group was Mrs. Anne Fine, ninth grade English and journalism teacher at Bay Senior High.

Extra student activities included a 'mixer' on Wednesday and Thursday night banquets where Attorney General Mike Moore was guest speaker.

On Friday, Governor Ray Mabus was on hand to address the students. Mabus' remarks included a plea for the young Mississippians to remain in Mississippi. Participants were also treated to a Friday night dance with a 50's theme.

Jessica Johnson, a 10th grade member, was appointed to the Governor's Staff for the 25th session to be held in the 1990 school year.

academic achievement among Mississippi's high school seniors, according to Kane Ditto, chairman of MEC's Council on Education.

Each STAR Student is asked to designate a STAR Teacher, a teacher who made the greatest contribution to the student's scholastic achievement.

Emerson chose French instructor Linda Keeler Jordan as Pass High's STAR Teacher.

Top scholars are designated STAR Students in more than 300 participating schools in Mississippi. From those students, area winners are selected, and the council awards scholarships to the state's top three STAR Students and the teachers they have selected.

Emerson, 17, is the son of Jeff and Judi Emerson of Pass Christian.

At Pass High he has been vice-president of the beta club, captain of the science club, a member of the French and chess clubs, the student council, the quiz bowl team, the jazz and marching bands and the prom committee.

Honors claimed by Emerson include, a second-place in the Rotary Journalism Essay Contest, a Japan/U.S. Senate Exchange Scholarship to Japan, the Highest Achievement in Chemistry Award and the Superior Upperclassman Achiever Award.

He plans to study pre-medicine and chemistry at Loyola University.

Jordan, a teacher for 17 years, received her B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Oregon.

A Phi Beta Kappa scholar, she has been a recipient of the District Rotary Scholarship to the Franco-American Workshop in Chavaniac, France and the Mississippi Award for Excellence in the use of Educational Television.

She was the Pass Christian Teacher of the Year in 1987 and was selected STAR Teacher in 1978 and 1981.

INVESTMENTS IN TECHNOLOGY, EDUCATION SUPPORT STATE'S ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Economic development in Mississippi is important to South Central Bell, just as it's important to our customers and to other businesses. New or expanded industry means new jobs and a stronger local economy.

TECHNOLOGY AIDS ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

To attract new industry and enable existing businesses to operate more efficiently, South Central Bell invested more than $210 million in equipment and technology in Mississippi last year. This investment is part of our commitment to build a network over which telephone calls, computer data, video services, and document copies can be transmitted.

By year-end 1990, a digital network capable of serving the most sophisticated business needs will be in place.

EDUCATION — A KEY FACTOR

South Central Bell recognizes that an educated work force is also necessary to attract new industry, and we are supporting education through several statewide programs.

We have adopted 15 schools through the Adopt-A-School programs, and we annually recognize the six teachers who receive the Presidential Award for Excellence in Science and Mathematics Teaching.

A South Central Bell Honors Scholarship Program will begin this fall, and the program will provide four-year scholarships to outstanding students in Mississippi. Mississippi State University will be awarded the first scholarship, and the recipient will be chosen by the university.

The BellSouth Foundation, created by the parent company of South Central Bell, has awarded a $34,000 grant to Mississippi State University to help fund the Writing and Thinking Institute and a $250,000 grant to the University of Mississippi to expand the curriculum of the Center for Telecommunications.

In addition, South Central Bell offers a two-to-one match of gifts made by employees to colleges and universities.

South Central Bell also helps sponsor the Statewide Literacy Program to improve the educational levels of Mississippi adults.

What's good for Mississippi is good for South Central Bell. And we are committed to Mississippi.

CHICAGO-STYLE ITALIAN BEEF
SANDWICHES

Ingredients:
4 pound boneless beef
bottom round rump roast
5 cups water
2 teaspoons Italian seasoning
2 beef bouillon cubes
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1/4 teaspoon crushed red peppers, cut into 1/2-inch strips
1 large onion, sliced
16 crusty rolls, split

Directions:
Place beef bottom round rump roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F) until meat thermometer registers 135°F. Allow 20 to 25 minutes per pound. Remove roast to a large platter. Pour drippings into 1-cup measure; skim off fat and discard. Reserve drippings. Cover roast and refrigerate until chilled. To prepare seasoned cooking liquid, combine drippings, water, Italian seasoning, bouillon cubes, garlic, salt, pepper and crushed red pepper in Dutch oven or large saucepan. Bring to a boil, add green peppers and onion and simmer, covered 20 minutes. Meanwhile carve roast across the grain into thin slices or slice with meat slicer. Remove seasoned liquid from heat. Add sliced beef; cover and let stand 6 to 8 minutes, stirring once. Serve on crusty rolls. 16 servings.
